

The Lanthanoids and Actinoids - The 7th Harmonic

These two sets of elements exist in the outer two circles of the period table. The Lanthanoids are elements 57 –70 and are placed between Barium and Lutetium. (This can vary depending on which periodic table uses as reference).

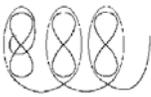

The Actinoids are in the outer circle and are elements 89 - 102 and placed between Radium and Lawrencium.

The Lanthanoids are called the Rare Earths, with only two of their number being radio active, while the Actinoids are nearly all radioactive. It is generally considered these are two different sets of elements and not specifically related by nature or activity however there appears to be some relationship through the periodic table placement and through their similar number of elements.

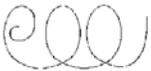

So what references can be found for these elements.

The Sixth Ring

Galaxy Spirit 12 Layer 6

Solar Sys. Astral 7 Layer 5

These elements are found on the sixth and seventh layers of the Periodic Table. On my gyroscopic diagram there are six primary dimensions which, each have two subsidiary layers. The sixth layer, the 12 fold zodiac related layer, however has its two layers more definitely defined than the other layers. When looking at the layers as part of a vortex form, the 12 fold layer is at the top, or most outer part of the vortex. So for the same vertical distance travel, as the other layers, there a stretching and bending activity taking place. So the loop we find at the fifth layer is stretched, and we have the developed of the two fold nature of the planetary activity into the zodiac activities they are associated with.

This is why I allow the sixth and 7th rings of the Periodic Table to fit into the Sixth sphere of the Gyroscopic diagrams. This ring is the ring of spiritual activity, and thus contains most of the radioactive elements and interestingly also the Rare Earths , who have a characteristic of having such a loose outer ring of electrons that they freely give and take electrons as the environment require.

7th Harmonic

There are fourteen of each set of elements. So if the same lemniscate and folding process is applied to these elements, as before, a double 7 fold series develops and it can then be placed on the gyroscopic spiritual body reference.
